

A national telephone privacy law would be welcomed by almost all telephone customers, however the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen the telephone privacy laws already in place in Indiana and other states.